Saturday night tragedy

4 die as snowmobiles plunge through ice

by Andrew Milne

Four men are dead after a weekend snowmobile accident just west of Carnarvon.

The four drowned when their machines went through the ice. A fifth man, Rick Canning, was able to get to shore.

Dead are Sherman Stoughton, of Carnarvon, Stoughton's brother-in-law Rob Mather, of Scarborough, and two friends — Mark Moore, of Toronto, and Ron Hurley of Brampton.

Stoughton has a wife and children in Toronto, but was separated, and living at a cottage in the Carnarvon area. The others had all come up to visit him for the weekend from the Toronto area.

Canning, recuperating Sunday at Stoughton's cottage, was visibly shaken.

"I just can't believe this," he said, eyes brimming with tears. "One of those guys (Hurley) was my best friend. We grew up together in Newfoundland. I've known him all my life."

Canning says the five were part of a larger group who had come up to the cottage.

"We just came up Friday to drink and hang out," says Canning.

Canning says the group had a few drinks, had dinner, and went snowmobiling. "We just went for a ride," he says. "We were just out to have a little fun."

He says he'll never take a snowmobile on a lake again. "You'll never catch me doing that again. No way."

Canning did not say precisely how the accident happened. The machines went through about 100 metres from shore, at a narrows between Twelve Mile Lake and Little Boshkung Lake. The current at the narrows is constantly undercutting the ice. There are also patches of open water.

The location was the scene of a similar incident February 4 of last year. Two snowmobiles plunged through the ice then. One was rescued with the aid of a person staying in a nearby cottage.

The Minden Fire Department responded to the call. However, the department is not equipped or permitted to attempt rescues beyond shore.

"We got there to see if there was anything we could do," said Doug Schell, of the fire department, "but they were out of reach. We could just see the light reflecting in their helmets."

Schell says they could not hear any cries for help when they arrived on the scene.

Canning says he was able to swim to solid ice, and then made it to land. He broke into a cottage on the shore and called for help.

Two of the deceased also apparently attempted to swim for it, but did not make it out of the water, and were found on the surface. The remaining two bodies were on the bottom of the lake. OPP divers retrieved them Sunday afternoon.

Investigating officers Kelly Anderson and Al Barnes of the Minden detachment of the OPP were also at the scene Sunday morning, assisting in the retrieval of the bodies. They say there are normally a few such accidents in the area every year, but this is the first one this season.

"People go out on the ice, and sometimes they go through," says Barnes.

Stoughton's brother-in-law, Jim Packard, works at a local restaurant, and lives at Hall's Lake. He says Stoughton and his guests had had trouble at the same location before.

Packard looked shaken. He'd just got the word that his brother-in-law's body had been identified Sunday afternoon.

Says Packard, "All his friends were up about three weeks ago, and in exactly the same spot they lost a machine. They got out all right, and they got the machine out the next day. But I just don't

Volunteers and mushers salvage Saturday-only event

Fighting the elements results in one day race

What could have been a disappointment for the Minden Sled Dog Derby turned into an entertaining one day event that kept the reputation of the race and the sport alive and well.

The derby was close to being called off Saturday morning and in fact the second day of the event was cancelled. Organizers of the event rode an emotional roller coaster in the five days leading up to Saturday.

Early last week, conditions couldn't have been better. Plenty of snow and chilly winter temperatures combined to provide an ideal trail for the racers. On Wednesday, despite the forecast of two days of milder conditions, the event was given the green light as organizers felt the trail could withstand the onslaught. They hadn't banked on the heavy rain however. The temperature climbed and rain moved into the area all but washing away the trail and any hopes of holding the race.

Friday, the thermometer plunged, snow replaced the rain, and Race Governor Val Loughheed's phone started ringing.

It seems the community just wasn't ready to go without a sled dog derby this year.

The phone calls came from truck drivers and loader operators offering their services to move snow into place, the municipal road crew was standing by to do whatever was necessary to stage the race, the HCSA and the Haliburton Nordic Trail Association offered their grooming equipment and many individuals called to see if there was anything they could do to help.

Working against the clock, the crews toiled all Friday night and the early hours of Saturday morning shifting mounds of stock-piled snow into place, flattening it and grooming it as best they could. The "snow", which had been drenched in rain, quickly froze when exposed to the chilly air.

Despite their efforts there were portions of the trail that were simply unreachable or beyond repair. The heavy rain had generated deep puddles in some locations and wash-outs in others and it became obvious it would be several days before they could be brought up to trail standards.

Saturday morning, derby trail boss Steve Loughheed and a group of mushers went out to examine the conditions. They returned with the bad news that the trail could not be considered safe for the teams.

With spectators already arriving in the community and most of the mushers here, derby sponsor Don Martin of Martin Pet Foods, proposed that a demonstration race be held on a shortened track. The mushers quickly agreed, and trail was completed from the Main Street start chute to the former Freightmaster garage.

The first team arrived at the start line

Mushers from across North America demonstrated their love of sled dog racing and their concern for their dogs as they participated in Saturday's event.

With the encouragement of his parents, Val and Steve Loughheed, who are also race organizers, hometown racer Jesse Loughheed speeds away from the start line on Minden's Main Street.

Local critics attend Peterborough hearings

Omnibus Bill under fire

By Andrew Milne

Critics of the provincial government's omnibus bill spoke at a January 13 meeting in Peterborough.

The brief presented by a delegation of health care workers from the Canadian Union of Public Employees — prepared after a legal team had gone over the bill to determine its impact — described the bill as massive in scope and an unprecedented grab for power by ministers of the provincial government — one which fundamentally undermines democratic processes.

A local health care worker speaking at the hearings also said she doesn't believe the bill's provisions for compelling doctors to work in rural areas are likely to function well in practice, and that there are better measures that could be taken.

Gwen Hewitt, a spokesperson from the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) local at Minden hospital told the Committee on General Government that the act "goes far beyond the traditional ideology of the Conservative Party, and seeks to destabilize communities, drive wedges between various social groups, to tear apart our network of social services and victimize workers."

Said Hewitt to The Times later, "As a health care provider, it certainly means more insecurity about my future. It also means the type of care I would like to give will in all probability be compromised by cut-backs. I simply won't be allowed to have the resources or the time to provide the kind of care I'm capable of doing. As a family member, community member, again it means uncertainty with respect to the future of medical care in our community."

Hewitt says the delegation attempted to make it clear that their presentation wasn't meant to be partisan. The three members who made the presentation, she says, had voted for three different parties in the past provincial election. But all were united in their opposition to the bill.

The Omnibus bill was brought forward by the government for first reading November 29, while most of the opposition MPPs were in a lockup for the government's economic statement of the same date, and thus unable to be present for the vote. This set off a bitter confrontation in the legislature, with opposition MPPs demanding that the bill be ruled out of order, and later even blocking security forces ordered to remove members from the legislature, to stall passage of the bill. The government eventually agreed to a compromise, with a series of hearings staged across the province to enable concerned groups to voice their reaction to the bill.

The bill is massive in scope. It contains 17 schedules, amends 44 acts, repeals two acts, and creates three new acts (see sidebar). Critics have called the bill utterly unprecedented, most particularly in the powers it gives to cabinet ministers.

Government defenders of the bill say it is justified by the seriousness of Ontario's economic situation.

CUPE, however, says Hewitt, takes issue with this, as does she, and as would anyone who really thinks about the impact of such legislation.

The brief criticizes the legislation as an attack on the elderly, the poor, and all who depend on compassionate, quality health care.

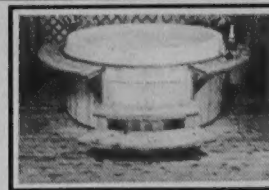

The deregulation the bill enacts, says the union, does not attack over-spending, but does threaten to de-

Haliburton Church closed due to danger of collapse

by Andrew Milne

St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton has been temporarily closed, due to the danger of collapse.

The problem is largely in the new portion of the building — completed only nine years ago, in 1987.

The Reverend Christopher Greaves says it is too early to say conclusively what has caused the problem. The report the church has received from the building inspector, he says, is not yet final.

He expects the final report next week.

The information they have received, from a building inspector for the Diocese of Toronto, says that there are a number of horizontal and vertical cracks in a basement wall, and that the roof line is sagging, where the roof of the new structure meets the original building.

Due to the danger of collapse, they have been instructed not to use the building.

Says Greaves, "It could happen next week or it could happen 25 years from now, but they weren't taking any chances. The chancellor for the diocese of Toronto, gathered these three sources of information, and decided that for safety's sake we'll temporarily have to close the entire building, even though it's largely in the newer section."

He says it is also too early to say how much repairs would cost, or how long they could take. "But we're talking about a basement," he says, "and we're talking winter time, so your guess is as good as mine."

Greaves hopes to hold the Haliburton services in the United Church in the interim — at 9:15 am. This will also change service times in Wilberforce, moving them to 11:00 am.

The minister is grateful for the understanding and support of the community.

"I just want to say, what a wonderful community we live in, that can respond to the needs of a church that is in need, and rally 'round in a time like this. I appreciate that and I want to get the word out, and ask that people be patient. The communities do use our building, and we're sorry that we can't get them in, but for safety's sake, they have to make other arrangements. And we appreciate people's prayers."

shortly after noon and with thousands of spectators lining the Main Street. The four dog teams sprinted down the start chute and across the bridge to the delight of the crowd who had come from throughout southern Ontario to take in the race. Chances are, most were unaware they were not seeing an "official" race. For most, the excitement of seeing the teams come up to the start line and then charge down the chute was what they had come to see.

The demonstration race was broken into two heats with a half hour break to allow the mushers time to organize their teams. About 50 racers took part.

During the morning delay and the break, spectators visited the dog yard and had an opportunity to meet the mushers, talk to them about the dogs and their training program and watch the teams prepare for the race. Following the two demonstration races, the popular kid and mutt race attracted a large crowd of spectators as youngsters with a sled and single dog dashed up the Main Street.

Since the event had no official standing, the competitive nature of the racing disappeared and the mushers took on a relaxed attitude. Many of the racers expressed appreciation for the support of the large crowd and were delighted to have been able to provide a demonstration of their sport. Others took advantage of the opportunity to try out new dogs in their teams or introduce them to the noise and excitement which surrounds the start chute formalities.

At a meeting which followed the event, Race Governor Val Loughheed and sponsor Don Martin expressed their appreciation to the community for the tremendous effort which went into preparing for the race. "We may not have had an official sled dog derby here this weekend, but I know the thousands who visited our community appreciate the effort you put forward on their behalf," Loughheed said.

Don Martin told the mushers their willingness to participate in the demonstration race was an excellent example of the sportsmanship which has always been a part of the sled dog racing community. "Thank you for not letting us down," he commented. Loughheed added that the racers were, "true ambassadors of the sport and you proved that here this weekend."

With those comments and the mixed emotions felt by everyone involved in the derby, the mushers, sponsors, volunteers and organizers relaxed Saturday night and talked about a year when everything will go according to plan.

"Minden" name doesn't go with old fire truck

The new owners of Minden's recently retired fire truck purchased the truck on an as is, as viewed basis, only to find that they would be required to remove the Minden name from the vehicle.

The purchasers, Tony Aymong and Carol Moffatt, are the owners of The Fire House Restaurant at Ox Narrows. Their plans for the truck are to use it as a promotional "vehicle" for the business. It would be parked in front of the restaurant, with a plaque identifying where it came from and other information about the truck. It may also be used in parades in the area.

A smooth transfer of the title ran into a snag when Aymong was advised that the Minden name would have to be removed. Part of Aymong's reason for buying the truck in the first place was because of the gold leaf lettering that identifies the truck as that of the Minden Fire Dept.

"It adds to the value of the vehicle, especially to collectors of old fire trucks," he said.

Aymong explained that gold leaf lettering is an expensive process which is rarely used any more. The paint contains real gold. He said there are very few people in Ontario who will use that process now. To have The Fire House Restaurant name painted on the truck in gold leaf would cost about $750.

Aymong is a professional fire fighter with the City of Toronto Marine Unit and a volunteer with the Stanhope Fire Department. He collects old fire fighting paraphernalia and parts from old fire trucks, using them to decorate the restaurant.

He also owns a 1974 Ford Thibeault fire truck that came from the Keele and Dundas Fire Hall in Toronto and he is currently negotiating the purchase of a retired truck from the Lake Of Bays Fire Department. The Minden truck is a 1971 Ford Pierreville.

The reason the municipal officials want the name Minden removed is because of liability. Council isn't necessarily worried about the use to which Aymong will put the truck, but the municipality's lawyer advises that as long as the Minden name remains on the truck, there will be a question of liability, if the truck was certified and put on the road.

Reeve Jeanne Anthon admitted that she would like to see the truck in parades with the Minden name on it. But she was concerned that the vehicle could later be sold to a third party and the municipality would then have no control over how the truck is used, possibly something with which the municipality wouldn't want the Minden name associated.

She said that she has heard of at least one individual who bought an old fire truck and used it to chase fires.

"I can assure you that as citizens and business owners the truck would never be used in any way that would tarnish the Minden name," Moffatt assured.

Aymong offered a compromise that council found agreeable, with reservations. He will have a permanent vinyl applique applied to the doors of the truck to obliterate the name Minden.

understand why they'd go back in there."

"He never really snowmobiled that much, but he had a snowmobile, and he liked going out with all these buddies."

At night, says Packard, it's easy to make the mistake of coming too close to the open water.

He says Stoughton was "a good guy", and would be missed.

"Things are pretty tense around here right now," he said.

Stoughton is survived by his wife, Sally, and two children, Amanda and Kyle. Mather is survived by wife Brenda, and children Shane and Shelby.

Nancy Mintz, wife of Daryl, came to Carnarvon to pick up her husband.

"They're shattered. All of them are shattered," she said. I had to phone the wives this morning, and nobody's good," she said. "All of them were my husband's best friends. They were all at my house just Friday night."

Moore moved to Toronto recently from Regina, Saskatchewan. Hurley was from Newfoundland, and was living in Brampton.

Police assisted in the removal of four victims who died late Saturday night when their snowmobiles plunged into the water at the narrows between Twelve Mile and Little Boshkung lakes.

Effect of cuts varies

By Andrew Milne

Cuts to provincial transfers to municipalities will have different impacts on different jurisdictions.

Calculations comparing the grant reductions against municipalities' own-purposes expenditures budget in eight municipalities show the cuts range from 1.9 percent to 6.2 percent of expenditures.

The greatest impact, among the municipalities compared, was in Bexley township. The $22,799 reduction to Bexley's provincial transfer amounts to 6.2 percent of that jurisdiction's 1995 expenditures.

A lesson from the city

We know that Haliburton County is not the equivalent of the GTA (Greater Toronto Area), but we believe there are lessons which this area could learn from the Golden Report issued last week. The report is an exhaustive study into the problems of municipal administration across an area that includes 30 distinct municipal divisions, a variety of levels of taxation and community needs.

The Golden Report has suggested that a regional council be created to administer the key municipal services across the area from Burlington to Clarington and north to Beaverton. It envisions this regional council as one way to eliminate parochialism, the in-fighting that takes place over economic opportunities and the uneven sharing of the costs of services. The recommendation of a regional authority reflects the need for greater integration of services, reduction in provincial government support and a realization that the various elements within the GTA must work together if the area as a whole is to prosper.

The problems addressed by the Golden Report obviously do not match those of Haliburton County, however, in many ways they are similar. The practical aspects of some of the solutions offered in the report have applications here in our small corner of Ontario. The parochialism, the scrambling for limited resources and the attitude of competitiveness often result in the area being over-looked or by-passed. Opportunities sometimes are missed and the full potential of the area is not being realized because of a lack of a co-ordinated approach. County council attempted to steer the region in that direction several years ago with a number of county-wide initiatives. For various reasons they fell by the wayside.

The best way to get these ideas back on track and take a page from the GTA study is to begin a process of amalgamation that would bring the management of municipal resources throughout the county under one administration. The time has come for the politicians in the ten municipalities to set aside any differences they feel may divide them and work toward a single, more efficient administration.

Positive, constructive & professional

Editor:

I would like to remind you and your readers that S.I.R.C.H. (Supportive Initiatives for Residents in the County of Haliburton) is a positive, constructive and professional organization, despite the negative press it has received in recent months. A "few" people have raised questions about S.I.R.C.H.'s management of one of its programs, the H.C.C.C. (Haliburton County Counselling Centre). It is healthy for the growth of an organization to raise questions, but questions should be asked so people can work together to find solutions, to continually strive to improve services and to insure the best professional service. This should not involve being negative, giving up, or "falling out", and looking for a new umbrella corporation.

S.I.R.C.H. has a proven track record. Many programs have been developed from dreams to reality and continue to be successful. The staff and volunteers of S.I.R.C.H. programs are all hard-working, dedicated people, making a positive difference in the lives of many residents of Haliburton County. I am a volunteer at W.E.H. (Women's Emergency House) and I had to undergo an extensive training process, interviews, reference checks, criminal reference checks, as well as a signed statement of confidentiality. There are policies and guidelines for W.E.H. and for S.I.R.C.H. that staff and volunteers must adhere to. I am also directed by a W.E.H. supervisor who works with the W.E.H. advisory committee, and is supervised by S.I.R.C.H.'s executive director, who in turn is guided by a Board of Directors. With this whole system of checks in place, how can anyone think that S.I.R.C.H.'s administrative process is anything but professional.

Hopefully, we are all trying to work positively through situations in our lives, and to seek solutions. This process may take weeks, months, even years to work through all the ups and downs. Have you done anything positive or constructive to help find solutions? Have you allowed a fair amount of time? Please consider what is best for the whole community. Unfortunately, the termination of two H.C.C.C. staff happened in the midst of all this, but timing is never perfect when people's jobs are terminated--this should remain a separate issue!

Before the meeting on January 26, I urge you to consider that moving on does not necessarily mean

Committees formed to study county's strategic objectives

by Jerry Grozelle

Haliburton County is on the way to establishing Strategic Objectives, with time frames and plans of action established.

Bob Maddocks and Brian Benn, from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, attended Haliburton County Council to present a summary of the progress of the county's Visioning Exercises held in April and December of last year.

"There have been a lot of changes since April 28," Maddocks said, "including a change in the provincial government."

The one-day April meeting "generated an understanding of the shared values and issues council members held and defined a vision and set of strategic objectives for county council," the report stated.

After that meeting, the county's clerk-treasurers met to discuss the issues presented by council members and develop a plan for collecting information related to the strategic objectives.

The December meeting, also one day, was to establish plans of action which would focus on the strategic objectives. Representatives of the clerk-treasurers presented the findings of their research and the Municipal Affairs and Housing delegates talked about the impacts of the provincial government's Economic Statement. Maddocks and Benn were asked to assist in the development and facilitation of the action plans.

The initial visioning meeting in April generated six key strategic objectives. December's meeting resulted in that number being trimmed to four. They are: County Restructuring/Good Business Practices; County Planning; Health Care Services; and Revenue Generation. Dropped from the previous objectives were Waste Management and Transportation.

Under the County Restructuring/Good Business Practices heading, council will address restructuring options. A task force will be established to examine road maintenance and winter servicing on a county-wide basis in conjunction with the Ministry of Transportation. The third item in that category is to implement a zero-based budget system in the county (which is a bookkeeping measure).

A SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats) analysis prior to the start of a strategic plan, is one of the items under the County Planning banner. A county Official Plan will be discussed after any restructuring has been implemented.

Health Care remains a priority in the county. Council plans to continue to meet with the Acting Health Services Board to help in whatever way possible to expedite the upgrading of health care services in the county.

In the Revenue Generation category, a committee will establish what Crown Lands can be liquidated or developed. The committee would then petition the provincial government to release those lands as quickly as possible. Examining the possibilities of cost management and staff incentive programs are also on that agenda.

Council members were divided into groups and each group had a brainstorming session. Ideas were presented and the reports discussed.

The result was the establishment of several committees, each with a specific goal and with a "champion" to oversee the strategic objectives.

County Warden Murray Fearrey was designated champion of most of the committees. Exceptions were the Road Maintenance committee, which is championed by County Engineer Les Shepherd and the Zero-Based Budget System, which will be championed by County Chief Administrative Officer Ross Rigney, with the assistance of department heads.

Deadlines vary according to the necessity to complete one task before another can be implemented as well as the priority of the objective. Health Care objectives are high on the priority list, with deadlines as early as the end of January or the early part of February.

Another Visioning meeting has been scheduled for this Wednesday, January 24.

Note: The term "champion" has been coined by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs representatives.

"It is new to all of us (on county council)," said Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon. "I take the term champion to mean a facilitator. It instills a sense of responsibility."

you will be moving forward. If high expectations, quality programs and professional standards are somehow seen as flaws in the S.I.R.C.H. administrative process, then maybe it is time to look elsewhere. I am very proud of the fact that we have such a professionally run organization in a small rural community. To all of you involved in S.I.R.C.H. programs, please continue to move forward with the great work that you do so well!

Look at that 'S' Car go

They say that familiarity breeds contempt. I don't know about "contempt" but I'm dead sure that having certain things around can make you take them for granted.

Take the jalopy. Also known as the set of wheels, bucket of bolts, puddle jumper, scrap heap, crate, chug-a-long, tin lizzie, rattletrap, junker or beater. Now there's something we take for granted.

Every day, most of us commit our bodies to contraptions with names like Chrysler, Chevrolet, Pontiac or Cadillac stamped on their noses. More exotic travellers sit in vehicles that carry monikers such as Audi, Lexus, SAAB, BMW or Fiat.

But how many of us know what those names mean?

Well, last things first. Fiat is an acronym, formed by the first letters of Fabrica Italiana Automobili Torino. Same story for the German BMW, which stands for Bavarian Motor Works. SAAB is almost an acronym---it stands for Swedish Airplane Inc.

Don't ask me where the airplane fits into it. SAABs are fast, but they're not that fast.

As for the name Audi, that is a little cleverer. August Horch was a German car maker who, for obscure legal reasons, was prohibited by law from putting his name on any automobiles he created. Trouble is, he had this hot new car and enough ego to want to see his name on the hood.

What to do? Well, in German, "horch" means to hear or listen. In Latin the verb to hear or listen is Audire. August Horch named his new car "Audi" and put one over on the German lawyers. At least the Latin speaking ones.

As for Lexus, well it sounds Latin, but it isn't. Lexus is a totally made up word coined to describe Toyota's top of the line car. They thought Lexus sounded, well...luxurious.

So much for the hot house plants of the automotive world--what about the more prosaic, home-bred varieties?

You may not think of Chrysler as prosaic, but its origins are. It comes from Walter Percy Chrysler, who got his start sweeping the railway roundhouse.

The Cadillac is named after a 17th century French fur trader, Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, who made Motor City possible by erecting a trading post at what would become Detroit. Pontiac was an 18th century Indian chief who laid siege to Detroit (it was held by the English at the time). Chevys take their names from Louis Chevrolet, a guy who raced cars when going 60 miles an hour was tantamount to breaking the sound barrier.

Then, of course, there's Henry Ford, the father of the mass produced automobile and perhaps the only car-maker whose persona remains as firmly identified as his product.

Well...there was one other--almost.

An Austrian who backed the production of a curious little German mechanical critter back in the 30's. His car was homely, slow and rather dinky in comparison to the land yachts that North American car manufacturers were turning out.

This guy wanted to call his car the K or F Wagon, standing for Kraft Durch Freude (strength through joy). Saner heads prevailed and the car hit the market as the Volkswagen. Kraft Durch Freude is a clumsy name for anything and a bad marketing idea.

But then that Austrian guy had a lot of bad ideas. His name was Adolf Hitler.

Car names--they're fascinating. Honda, Toyota and Hyundai sound almost impossibly exotic. In fact they are simply named after the guys who first manufactured them.

Datsun? Well, I can't vouch for it, but my friend Ernie the Barfly down at Moe's Tap Room claims he knows where the name came from.

"A bunch of Detroit car-makers went to Japan a few years back," says Ernie. "They were looking for a Japanese company that could turn out a new economy car for them. They finally settled on an automotive plant on the outskirts of Yokohama. They were sold when the plant manager promised them ultra-speedy delivery."

"They asked him how soon they could get their first consignment of the new cars."

"Three weeks," the plant manager replied.

"The Detroit guys were dumfounded" says Ernie. "Their jaws dropped, their eyes bugged out, they looked at the plant manager and said all together..."

Cuts

per household basis, the reductions again vary from municipality to municipality, from 23.3 percent of the 1995 grant amount (Galway-Cavendish), to 9.3 percent (Somerville). Galway-Cavendish received $114.97 per household in 1995, and will receive $90.04 in 1996. Somerville's numbers are $119.10 and $106.86.

Anson, Hindon, and Minden, which had the highest grants per household in 1995, at $137.36, drops to third of the eight jurisdictions, at $108.46, behind Laxton-Digby-Longford and Dysart.

The numbers range as much as they do for a number of reasons. First, the 1996 grant amount is based on a rather direct mathematical combination of 1995 levels of two types of grants — an unconditional grant, which was once roughly geared to population (and adjusted according to assessed property levels), and a roads grant, which was based more on perceived need.

The Ministry of Transportation of Ontario (MTO), which administered the roads grant, also adjusted the numbers to distribute a 'supplementary' funding pot which normally is distributed according to need for special projects involving unusual expenditures — such as bridges.

The MTO adjustment seems to have resulted in some small municipalities actually getting increases in grant amounts, due to the formula. The formula adds the adjusted MTO amount and the unconditional amount, applies a uniform cut to the result, but caps that cut at 9.5 percent of expenditures. However, in some cases, the adjustment in the MTO amount was greater than the maximum reduction the 9.5 percent cap imposes.

The MMA, contacted in the first week the cuts were announced, seemed unaware at first that this had happened.

Reeves contacted in Haliburton jurisdictions, in the week of the cuts, said they expect their municipalities to attempt to reduce services rather than raise local taxes, and will also avoid imposing user fees as a result of the cuts.

Reeve John Huke, of Somerville, made similar comments when questioned last week.

Somerville, said Huke, would be looking at reducing services, but with so small a range of services — roads, fire protection and landfill sites — there aren't a lot of options for places to cut.

Said Huke, "We're waiting to find out how we wind up in 1995 before we make any major decisions. People don't want to pay more taxes, so we have to look at user fees for revenue, and somewhere you have to decrease the service. You're probably going to see it going to picking garbage up every two weeks instead of every one week."

Huke also said he understood the need for the province to make the cuts.

Said Huke, "I guess they have to start somewhere. But it's going to be difficult, that's for sure. We may have some town hall meetings before we make any major decision, because this is just the first year. It's going to be the easy one. Next year is the tough year — they go through the same scenario next year."

Huke also expressed concern that the omnibus bill's provisions regarding county road systems would also result in additional expenditures for Somerville. Schedule M of the bill provides counties with the option to impose road levies — for the maintenance of county roads — on townships. The provision, says Huke, may cost Somerville as much as $130,000 per year.

Redmen semi-finalists at Snowfest Hockey Tournament

The annual Snowfest High School Hockey Tournament in Peterborough saw the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redmen advance to the semi-final. The Redmen lost only one game on the way to the semi-final, a 4-3 decision to Campbellford in the first round.

Haliburton tangled with Campbellford again in the semi. The final score of that contest was 4-2 for Campbellford. A pair of power play goals made the difference in that game.

"The boys pulled together and played some of the best hockey of the year," said coach Ron Yake.

The tournament was a 16-team event, with four pools of four teams for the preliminary round. The top two teams from each pool advanced.

The Redmen opened with a 7-1 victory over Ajax.

Dennis Woods and Josh Burk paced the Haliburton attack, each with a pair of goals. Ian Clements, Andrew McKelvey and Mark Hughes were the other snipers, with one each. Woods, Curtis Reynolds, Burk, Tim Stouffer and McKelvey each picked up a single assist.

Haliburton's second game was against York Mills, which leads its league. The Redmen doubled York Mills 4-2.

Reynolds, Chris Nielsen, Bill Dovell and Hughes were the Haliburton sharpshooters, with one apiece. Single helpers went to Hughes, Stouffer, Matt Galbraith, Burk and McKelvey.

Campbellford squeaked out a 4-3 win over the Redmen in the next game, scoring the winner with 17 seconds left in the third period.

Woods scored twice and Reynolds netted one. Dovell, Stouffer, Burk and Reynolds assisted on one each.

The quarterfinal game saw Haliburton shade Saltfleet (Stony Creek) 3-2 in overtime.

Hughes scored both of the regulation time goals for the Redmen, with assists going to Galbraith, McKelvey and Reynolds. Woods netted the game winner in OT, from Burk.

Woods notched his sixth goal of the tournament to open the scoring against Campbellford in the semi-final game. McKelvey set that one up.

Before the first period ended, Campbellford got back on even terms.

Dovell put the Redmen in front again three minutes into the middle frame. McKelvey and Hughes assisted.

Campbellford kept the Redmen off the scoreboard for the rest of the game while adding three markers to its side of the scoreboard to grab the win.

WILDCATS BITE BACK: The I.E. Weldon Wildcats were hungry for a win when they came to Haliburton to take on the Redmen last Wednesday. The Wildcats put the bite on the Redmen, defeating the Haliburton team 4-1. The lone Haliburton sharpshooter was Dennis Woods. Bill Dovell and Tim Stouffer assisted. Weldon remains in last place in the league standings, just one point behind the Redmen.

Ingram leads Stamp to victory with 5 goals, 4 assists

by Jerry Grozelle

Stamp 12, Westside 3

Ivan Ingram was the driving force behind the Sid Stamp Fuels 13-3 victory over Westside Jug City in the first of three Minden Men's Hockey Association games on January 15. Ingram scored five goals and assisted on four more.

The Stamp crew led 7-1 at the end of the first half and increased the lead to 10-1 early in the second.

Mark Thompson helped the Stamp cause with four goals and one assist. Jeff Howe notched a hat trick and two assists while Dennis McKee added a goal and three helpers to the winning tally. In the assist department, Scott Bailey picked up three, John Teljeur had a pair and single helpers went to Barry Smith and Bern Berry.

Kim Hamilton scored two of the Westside goals and helped set up the other one. Kent Taylor was the other sniper. Tom Haley and Tom Hewson picked up one assist each.

Times 7, Home 4

The Times outscored Home Hardware 7-3 in the evening's second game.

Home opened the scoring, but The Times netted two in a row to take over the lead. The seesaw battle lasted throughout the first half, ending in a 3-3 draw. Outgunning the opposition 4-1 in the second half put the game in the bag for The Times.

Craig Crowe scored a hat trick for the winners and helped set up two more. Jeff Black notched a pair of markers and as many assists. Single goals were netted by Craig Smith and Dave Ward. John Ballantyne and Jarrett Campbell helped the winning cause with three assists each, and Andy Schollig had two helpers.

Dave Hartwick scored two of the Home Hardware replies, with Ron May and Charlie Teljeur adding singles and one assist each. Tom Miscio and Dwayne Warburton each had a pair of assists and Gary Harrison picked up one.

Hartwick 12, KDD 2

After taking a 4-0 lead by the end of the first half, Hartwick Construction gave up the first two goals of the second to Kountry Double D in the second. That put KDD back to within striking distance of Hartwick. But only temporarily. Hartwick scored nine unanswered goals, cruising to an easy 12-2 victory.

Scott Hamilton and Scott Nesbitt paced the Hartwick attack with four goals each. Hamilton also picked up six assists, while Nesbitt had four. Dave Sisson netted two goals and three assists. Lawrence Loughheed, Dave Dollo and Eldon Bull potted single goals. Kevin Hamilton contributed four assists, Loughheed had three, Dave Crego had two and Dollo had one.

Glenn Hall and Monty Miscio notched a goal and one assist each and single assists also went to Paul Mayo and Spade Stamp.

RACERS ON ICE: The ice racing season got underway in earnest January 13 at the Minden Fairgrounds. Competitors will be vying for trophies in eight classes over the seven week Ontario Region STP Ice Racing Series. The Minden races are the only ones sanctioned by the Canadian Automobile Sports Club, the sport's regulating body.

Peewee B Monarchs skate to deadlock with Dads team

by Kim Emmerson

In probably their hardest game of the year, the Minden peewee Tri-County Monarchs faced off against the much feared Dads in a post-Christmas showdown hockey game.

There was a lot of pre-game hype as the boys wanted to show who was the better team. The match was well advertised and a large crowd came to watch the exciting action.

In net for the boys was trainer Brett Foster, who stopped a lot of hard shots. The Dads used regular goaltender James Bleakley.

The Dads had a short bench, with only seven players being brave enough to show up. The Dads weren't really all dads. Lisa Kerr was one of the players. I think she spent her rookie years as a member of the now defunct California Golden Seals, because she had a pair of white skates on, just like the Seals did.

Most of the peewees stayed clear of her picks. Lisa got an assist during the game.

The game was complete with scorekeeper Norm Perrott. He was also the play-by-play commentator and colour man. The PA system was busy as he followed the exciting plays until the end.

The game was fairly tame as only the mean Dads got penalties -- one each to assistant coach John Robinson and assistant Scott Doan, for body checking.

Scoring for the peewees was as follows: Matt McCord and Jamie Doan with four goals each; Kyle Robinson with two; and David Byrnes with a single. Byrnes had four assists; Tom Perrott had three; Ryan Emmerson, Robinson and Doan had two each and Greg Kerr had one.

All that adds up to 11 goals.

Not to be outdone, the Dads (and Lisa) got 11 also. Fortunately, the scorekeeper was slow on the switch and the Dads were able to tie the score with four seconds left in the game.

Scoring for the Dads were: Kim Emmerson and Scott Doan with hat tricks. Coach Jim Bleakley had two and singles went to Ralph Hutchinson, John Robinson and John Graham. Coach Bleakley got four assists with Emmerson, Doan and Robinson adding two each.

A shootout ensued to break the tie. However, there is much confusion over who scored, so a rematch was scheduled for this past Saturday at 1 p.m.

Monarchs double Beaverton

The Tri-County peewee Monarchs played host to the Beaverton #2 team on January 13. The local boys came out firing on all cylinders, defeating Beaverton 12-6.

James Bleakley was back in net and he held Beaverton scoreless until the third period.

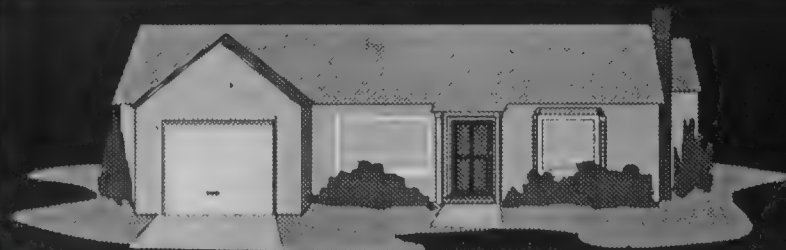

Leading the scoring for the Monarchs were Brad Gauley and Ryan Emmerson, with six points each. Gauley scored four times and Emmerson notched two. Matt McCord also tallied four goals. Jamie Doan got one goal and four assists. David Byrnes counted one goal and three assists. Defenceman Matt Hutchinson got two assists and Kyle Robinson and Tom Perrott got one assist each.

Midget A Monarchs down Haliburton 3-1

Darnell Gilbert scored twice and Sheamus Donnery added a single as the Minden Midget OMHA Monarchs downed the Haliburton Huskies 3-1. Dave Raback, Tom Bagshaw, Jeff Wray and Rob Camelon picked up one assist each for the winners.

Josh Dennis netted the lone Haliburton reply, unassisted.

The game was played in Minden on January 13.

Ontario Open

Several local bowlers participated in the Ontario Open Tournament in Fenelon Falls and Lindsay on January 3 and 10. This is a flat score tournament, with each zone's best bowlers competing.

Cathy Snell placed in the top ten in the ladies division. That placing won her a spot on the mixed team at the Provincial Championships in April.

The men's division saw Scott Moore place fourth with a 258 average. That performance earned him a place on the men's team at the Provincial Championships in April.

High-Low Doubles

The Association ran the house round of the high-low doubles tournament on January 7. The winning teams from each league participated. The winning team representing the Legion was Fred Knight and Roy McDonald with 140 pins over their average. Second place, with 92 pins over their average, went to Fred Balcombe and Tom Haley. Alex Little and Sandy Hartwick were a close third, with 91 pins over their average.

Knight and McDonald earned a berth in the provincial finals but they will not be able to attend because of a previous engagement. Balcombe and Haley will take their place at the championships in February, where they will be competing for one of four trips for two to Florida.

Omnibus bill

volve Ontario's welfare state to a third world marketplace.

The only winners in such a marketplace, it concludes, will be major corporations — foreign health care firms, and multinational drug companies.

The brief also criticizes rhetoric that claims social spending is out of control, and which places debt reduction as the single most important goal for government. It states that part of the debt problem, neglected so far in government economic strategy, has to do with the apparent inability or unwillingness of governments to make the corporate sector and the wealthy — which also benefit from government spending on infrastructure — liable for the country's debts.

The brief reads, in part, "Stats Canada has shown that spending on social programs in Ontario is not out of control. Bank profits are at their highest in history, corporate profits are on a steep upward curve and yet none of these windfalls has been passed on to workers or to government to reduce the debt."

The brief concludes by demanding the government rescind the bill entirely, and that any reintroduction of any of its parts allow for full public hearings.

Hewitt says the delegation concentrated on the effects of the bill on health care, and also requested that the government prolong hearings into the bill, to allow the many groups who did not get space at the hearings to say their piece. Hewitt also said that the bill's provisions to compel doctors to move to rural areas, though they might sound good for underserved areas like Minden, aren't likely to work well in practice.

Says Hewitt, "Some of the things we touched on were the user fees, because that's very important to us. We touched a little on the doctors, the mandatory service/replacement, and the fact that we don't believe that will really solve the problem. We want the doctors to become part of the community, not be forced to come to the community, and we believe there are other ways they can achieve that, such as financial incentives, education, etcetera."

"We also talked briefly about the tax cuts... It's been determined that for a family earning approximately $35,000 a year, the tax cut that has been promised would mean benefits reaped around $350, and yet the user fees allowed under Bill 26, would be $1,100 to the individual. So the tax cut really isn't worth much if you look at what the user fees are going to be."

"And again, we just feel that there needs to be a continuance in the hearing, at least six months worth. There were a number of people refused standing today — a number of groups, and that was the case for the hearing on the 19th as well."

Other groups, including the Ontario Medical Association, have opposed the bill. The OMA has also proposed a series of amendments to the bill, including the deletion of sections that would give the government power to determine what is medically necessary treatment for patients, and sections determining where in the province doctors could practise. The OMA also expressed support for the Information and Privacy Commissioner's proposed amendments

The following are excerpts from CUPE's brief criticising the Omnibus Bill, as presented to the Committee on General Government, January 12, 1996:

"Bill 26 is an ominous bill because it is portentous of an unprecedented arrogance among our elected lawmakers. It not only assumes that cabinet ministers have a unique grasp of the truth and therefore, should be empowered to override all skilled and heretofore legitimate authorities of the state, but that they are sufficiently superior in intellect, understanding and expertise to nullify awards, agreements and understandings made between agents of the crown, public servants, public agencies and the citizenry as a whole."

"Not only does Bill 26 bestow dictatorial powers upon ministers, it absolves them of all responsibility for making wrong decisions. They are saved harmless from the effects of their folly, while those to whom they have whimsically allowed some residual authority are now to be held personally liable for their decisions. No wonder the government wants this legislation passed quickly without any meaningful legislative or public scrutiny."

"Bill 26 is an act legitimizing irresponsible, incompetent and corrupt government. It proposes no improvement to the quality or cost-efficiency of public services. It does not seek to serve the people of Ontario."

"Rather, it makes every activity of government subordinate to the desire to privatize services and cut the cost of people services. It replaces healthcare with wealthcare. It seeks to make the corporate welfare bums of the Mulroney era the corporate wealthcare barons of the Harris regime."

"Bill 26 does not attack overspending. It attacks the elderly, the poor, and all who are in need of compassionate, high quality care."

concerning the privacy of patient records.

The bill will receive its final reading in the legislature January 29.

The original text of Bill 26, as well as some of the opposition's criticism, is now available on the World Wide Web, at <http://tdg.res.uoguelph.ca/~lilith/gcac>.

Staanworth residents keep busy despite the weather

by Fern Donnelly

It's that time of year again when the question of the week is "Will we go to the dogs or not?" We were all so sure the snow would stay thick and soft. We are all hoping for another white weekend to ensure the big winter event.

Weather doesn't stop our active members - Maxine Cross and Fred Knight are on the bowling circuit and Katie Parker works hard at curling.

Bingo and euchre keep others busy and then of course, there is the "Darts". Most of our members realize that "failure to hit the mark is never the fault of the target." We can usually count on Brad for a big score when needed - the rest of us get it when we don't need it!

A turkey pot-luck supper was a highlight for the residents. The evening ended in games and prizes with winners and losers of course. Katie Parker provided the games, some of which were brain teasers, but prizes were won. The residents are very thankful to have Dorothy Ashe with us as she always proves herself a top chef.

We still have some on our sick list - Jean Marsh, Audrey Trumbull, Dolly Aishford, Doris Foster and Harry Cowen. Our prayers and best wishes for healthy days ahead are with them always.
